Important Technical Issues

beta_lm License Manager issues on recent Linux flavors

Several issues have been reported related to beta_lm_tools on linux machines (only) with new OS flavors like FEDORA 15 or 16, CentOS 6.2 and probably others.
The first issue was that the beta_lm -host_key command reported back an all-zeros beta_lm hostkey (000000......000).
The second problem was occurring when a machine was not connected to any network and consequently the Ethernet card did not appear in the hardware configuration (ifconfig). In such cases, launching of more than one ANSA session per user, per display, required more than one license-set of tokens to be reserved by the license manager. The bove issues have been fixed with the update of BETA_LM_TOOLS_v6.3 for Linux, dated August 2nd, 2012 and the ANSA v13.2.3 updated package, released on the same date. Owners of machines like those mentioned above, are asked to update the BETA_LM_TOOLS_v6.3 and report further issues that may be noticed.

Drawing issues on Windows 7 with NVIDIA Quadro

It had been reported that ANSA on machines with NVIDIA Quadro running Windows 7 were demonstrating irregularities in the position where the grid nodes were drawn. This issue is eliminated with the NVIDIA driver version 305.93 . Please install this recommended driver if such issues have been noticed.
